

Mr. Adam Alley, EEE teacher at John Warner Middle School

Mr. Adam Alley is from Midvale, Utah. He moved to Columbia, MO. in 2003 after getting married to his wife, Lynn, in December, 2002. He graduated from Columbia College with his Bachelor's of Arts Degree (BA) and Certification in Elementary 1-6 in 2007, followed by his Master's of Arts in Teaching Degree (MAT) in 2010 with Dual Certification in Special Education K-12 and Reading Specialist K-12. He also just finished certification requirements for Gifted Education K-12 and is nearing Completion of an additional Master's of Education Degree (MED) in Educational Leadership (anticipated Dec. 2021).

Mr. Alley has taught in various capacities in Booneville, Harrisburg, and Columbia Public Schools for the past 18 years. He currently is teaching half-time Special Education at Lange Middle School and half-time Gifted Education at John Warner Middle School. He enjoys spending time with his wife and 3 children along with serving in the community through his church and as a Director of a Family History Center. He has many hobbies and interests including reading, sports, movies, traveling, outdoor activities and anything related to animals and nature.